Acclaimed National Journalist Investigating Bill Greiner

Ben Swann's Truth in Media Project Submits FOIA and NH RSA 91:A Requests to Town of Bedford

On Tuesday, March 11th, voters in Bedford, New Hampshire will go to the polls to elect town officials and decide on budget measures. Two of the candidates, Aaron Day for School Board and Matt Philips for Town Council, have come under attack by a local real estate developer.

On February 21, 2014, the following YouTube video of Bill Greiner was posted on YouTube <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IxFzHC01fW4>, in which he draws attention to the fact that Day and Philips are associated with the Free State Project, and makes several other inaccurate and misleading statements.

Greiner rejected an invitation to meet to discuss the inaccuracies in the video. Subsequently, numerous concerned Bedford residents have approached us regarding alleged questionable business dealings, intimidation, and unethical behavior in town.

We suspect that the Free State Project is not the real issue or concern and that this is simply an attempt at misdirection away from other activities that are going on at the state and local levels. The Free State Project isn't a political party, it is simply an effort to attract to the state of New Hampshire more people who already resonate with the New Hampshire "Live Free or Die" spirit. I encourage you to research this yourself at <http://www.freestateproject.org> More importantly, as individuals, I encourage you to speak with us directly and research what we have actually done.

The silent majority in Bedford values limited government, lower taxes, and local control, but have often been drowned out by a small faction of insiders and well-funded organizations that have been pushing a personal, economic agenda in town over the past decade.

The Bedford Taxpayers Association (BTA) endorsed Aaron Day for School Board and Matt Philips for Town Council. Separately, they declined to endorse the proposed $30 million road bond. At the Town Council meeting on February 26, Town Councilor Jim Scanlon blamed us for the BTA's decision to not recommend the road bond. Aaron Day is running for school board and has made no comment on the road bond. Matt Philips is running for town council and in his public debate and his interview on "Tell it Like it Is" has indicated support for the road bond. This is questionable behavior for a sitting Town Councilor. We have put together the following 3 clips from the last town council meeting. We have a number of questions regarding both the practice of some of the Town Councilors as well as some of Greiner's business dealings as they relate to property taxes.

"Is Jim Scanlon Improperly Trying to Influence Voters" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Qj3N5DNbY9M>

"Is this why Bill Greiner is Attacking The Free State Project?" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DOJ6M1lP-fU>

"Ethics and Honesty on the Bedford Town Council, Jim Scanlon Edition" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oL6FqNh6-FE>

The escalation of the attacks against us through print, newspaper, television, private e-mails, and phone calls has spurred Ben Swann's Truth in Media Project to submit a FOIA Right-to-Know Request to the Town of Bedford, NH.

The following is an excerpt from the request:

Mr. Swann requests and is entitled to receive the following pursuant to N.H. RSA § 91-A:

1. Copies of all contracts and agreements in effect at any time within the last five years, between the Town and Greiner;
2. Copies of all emails sent from or received on any Town email address within the last five years which in any way relates to the subject matter covered in ¶ 1;
3. Copies of any disclosures, which the town currently possesses or has possessed within the last five years, filed by any Town official or employee relating to the acceptance or receipt of any sort of gift or gratuity from Greiner;
4. Copies of any disclosures, which the town currently possesses or has possessed within the last five years, filed by Greiner relating to the acceptance or receipt of any sort of gift or gratuity from any source;
5. Copies of all emails sent from Greiner and received within the last five years on any email address owned, controlled, or operated by the Town or any Town official or employee; and
6. Copies of all emails, sent or received within the last five years, from any Town email address associated with Greiner.

Regardless of the results of this election, we are committed to living in a town that is free from intimidation and crony capitalism and will continue to fight for the rights of all of our citizens.

If you are aware of any inappropriate behavior at the town level, please contact us at:

(970) 325-3785 (3ALERT5) or bedfordwatchdog@gmail.com

Aaron Day is currently the Chairman of the Republican Liberty Caucus of New Hampshire, Board Member at The Bedford Republican Committee, member of the Hillsborough County Republican Party, Managing Director at ARD Ventures, board member of JobHive, board member of The Free State Project, CEO of The Atlas Society, Chairman and CEO of Tangerine Wellness, and was Entrepreneur-in-Residence at Industry Ventures, a technology-focused venture capital firm. Steve, your use of the term "taking over" is offensive. These are people engaging the political process to ensure their views are represented.

A more recent essay on tactics - seems to bolster the 'take over government' theme, and definitely back up Greiners assertions that they are here to change our way of life:

Interesting. None of you are the least bit worried that people like Greiner have already 'taken over' in some towns? Yes these folks would represent us all and cannot be 'directed' by any one individual or interest. Not only has he lived here since 2009, the suggestion that he is breaking the law by living in a 6,000 sq ft home with another adult is intended to put him in a bad light. Mr. Greiner lived in a home with a wife, 3 kids and THREE other adults. We did not hear you or anyone complaining about that. So why all of a sudden is it a crime? That's a smear and a personal attack. Mr. Greiner left himself open to the idea that he 'invaded' Canada. Research on Dr. Kassler on the other hand, scares me because of his possible connections to vaccination registries and vaccine companies. Don't think they are not trying to create these registries because they ARE. We would never have to worry about that with Aaron Day.

LOL @ Steve: Do you folks realize that running for SCHOOL BOARD has nothing to do with most of this nonsense you are posting? Good lord, you are all so pathetic. No wonder you are under the spell of one or two people — you are all so gullible. And you seem to love your servitude. On the other hand, I would NOT want that Kassler guy near my kids. The public schools are already 'dismantled' because they are now controlled by foundations, their corporations and educational 'consultants' and vendors like Pearson and Gates. WAKE UP PEOPLE. Schools are supposed to be under local control not federal control but they are not which is why they are doing the awful things they are doing. Aaron's job would be to restore public education to what it is SUPPOSED to be.

YOU on the other hand, first said they were keeping people out because they have a membership fee, (class warfare) but then said you would never care to join. You also did a complete 180 when you first accused them of being RADICALS, but now complain they don't do ENOUGH to stop high taxes, etc at the local level. Your flip flops are impossible to keep up with. I suspect that in your zeal to attack Aaron, you are flinging anything against the wall so much so that you can't even keep your own lines of BS straight! LOL

Unless of course you were fortunate enough to marry a doctor. As far as Mayor Billy Boy, what goes around will finally come around. Keep up the good work Aaron Especially when he belongs to an organization that advocates the abolishment of public schools. Wait - 'not belongs to' - 'is on the board of'. Stop with the crap about them coming here to leave us alone, you're being ridiculous. Baby Huey? Bill, are you really nearly 50 and insulting someone's physicality (I actually have never seen Aaron so I assume he is a gig guy as that's the image that you conjure up)? Seems pretty immature to me for someone who I assume is a pretty successful professional. Most people would have a higher standard for themselves. Can you explain the perceived hypocrisy of accusing Aaron of not being a good candidate because he is a "newcomer" yet you support Innis? Someone who in fact may be a good candidate but one bridge at a time...

no thanks. that's just a cop-out by someone who reinforces the notion that they are indeed a hypocrite. It should be an easy explanation. My real name is of no consequence. it is predictable how quickly you "high five" other posters that also choose to not use their real name, but when someone actually asks you a legitimate question (after you have chosen to make yourself a public figure) you turtle up. The few times I have spoken out in public in Bedford (BCTV, etc...) I use my real name and address. No need to here. Your response just supports much of the negativity that your critics mention.

Bill, call it what you will. My business is involves interactions with very wealthy, influential individuals, many celebrities as well as other famous people of all political and religious persuasions. My political affiliations and other personal beliefs could potentially impact my revenues by millions of dollars. I don't mix my personal and business lives. That's no cop-out and I am not in the habit of "drive-by" insults, although there has been an exception or two. If I were to meet you in person, you would probably never be able to assess where I stand politically as I don't engage politics, etc... until I actually know someone better. On Patch, i have had many discussions with many people who don't agree with me and most have been quite cordial and fact-based. The ones that don't approve, tend to lack intellectual honesty and a lack an ability to reason through a mature debate without resorting to school yard tactics. Fortunately, without even realizing it, the transparency of their position is so obvious to other commenters. Additionally, there are far too many unstable "bunny boiler" types that are sitting behind their computer just waiting for some small thing to snap in their head that will set them off. I refuse to subject my family to that type of psychosis that is totally unpredictable. Answering the question or not is of little consequence as your silence will speak volume. It's not like you were asked to hand over a nuclear code, it was a pretty simple question. Your support of Innis flies in the face of your own argument. You probably use the newcomer argument as a red herring and it's really because you just don't want to see Aaron elected. That's cool but you made the claim, you just can't seem to support it.

Interesting that Bill Greiner, who thankfully has no clue who I am, or where I live, or with whom, wants the world to think/know that I 'LIVE ALONE'. Gee, I cannot imagine why. Could that be some sort of DOG WHISTLE? ---- But at least you know he admitted he was digging for information ...and is now happy to spread it around along with his other conspiracy theories about alien invaders, or colonizers, or body snatchers or, er, whatever. ---- None of the others here are 'me'. That is another example of a smear without proof. I have a day job and would not be able to waste that much time online. I work in a very busy office but some things must not be ignored. ---- And also very interesting that he who starts all these personal attacks almost every election, would have the nerve to call ME "vicious". I have never been vicious except when I fight back, you can expect me to fight back. ---- @Steve: I really could care less about the NH GOP or who is Chair or whether the BRC takes up local issues or not. I am NOT the BRC. I belong, I help out where I can, but I do not make the decisions. So if you want to whine about the BRC talk to them about it. ---- No one is advocating abolishing the public schools. They might however, be trying to take them back from the corporations who have destroyed teaching and learning and turned schools into incubation chambers for political causes. And good for them. ---- People who want less government are indeed working to get them to leave us, and you alone. But you nanny-staters love government so much, you are the main reason it has gotten so out of hand in the first place.
